TWENTY-NINTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME (A)

In the Gospel reading today, the Pharisees try to set a trap for Jesus, by asking Him a question about paying taxes to the Roman emperor. The issue of taxes was a hot topic at the time, because Jerusalem was under Roman occupation, and the Jews were paying burdensome taxes to a foreign power. In asking Jesus whether it is permissible to pay taxes to the Emperor, they hope He will say something which upsets the Roman authorities, or angers the Jews. Matthew tells us that the Pharisees team up with the Herodians. The Herodians were political supporters of King Herod, whom the Romans put in power. So the Pharisees and Herodians were not even allies or friends, but they joined forces, trying to bring down Jesus.

They try to disarm the Lord with flattery. They call Him 'a truthful man, who teaches the way of God' – of course, if they really believed this was true, they would be His followers. Jesus sees right through their devious intent, and calls them hypocrites. In our own lives, do we use ulterior motives or false flattery to deceive or manipulate others?

Jesus cannot be deceived. He asks the Pharisees for a coin, and points to Caesar's head on it, saying, 'give back to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and to God what belongs to God.' Jesus explains that both political and religious obligations can be legitimately met. 'Give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar', thus we should strive to fulfil our duties as citizens of our country. Yet, we are to give to God what belongs to Him. What is it that belongs to God? Just as the Roman coins bore the image of Caesar, and our coins bear the image of the Queen, every human person bears the image of God. Thus, our highest obligation in life, irrespective of nationality or citizenship, for man, woman and child, is to give ourselves back to God.

Our duty to God comes first. In the first reading, a non-Jewish king, Cyrus, conquered Babylon, where the Chosen People were in exile. He gives permission for them to return to Israel, and thus sets them free. This indicates that God is supreme over earthly systems of rule.

When God is pushed out, the result is tyranny. The decline of moral standards, particularly in the west, has resulted from the rejection of Christ. No longer is He enshrined as our King. Europe has forgotten its Catholic heritage, and all manner of evil is now accepted, with fierce attacks on life and marriage. The culture of death is all around us.

The solution is to allow Christ to reign over all aspects of our lives, to put him at the centre. If He occupies that space in our hearts and minds, then through us, He will permeate the culture. It takes courage to stand against the evils of the day, but let us take heart from the example of St Thomas More, who said, 'I die the king's good servant, but God's first.'

Let us offer our lives to God, so that we can be His instruments in a world in desperate need of Him.

RIP

With sadness, we announce the death of Muriel Chetty, an active member of our parish community for many years. She died last week after a long illness, and our prayers and thoughts are with her family and friends. Her body will be received into the Church on Monday 20th October at 5pm, and her Requiem Mass will take place at 10.30am on Tuesday 21st, followed by committal at the City of London Crematorium.

May she rest in peace.
