Sixth Sunday of Easter (C)

Today's first reading describes a conflict in the early Church, over whether non-Jewish converts would need to be circumcised to join the Church. There is a dispute and both sides sincerely advance their arguments, but in the end a ruling has to be made.

This shows the earliest example of our Church's teaching authority. Paul and Barnabas go to Jerusalem to consult the apostles and attain a decision. They come back with a ruling from Peter and the others stating that circumcision is not necessary, and their letter even declares, 'it has been decided by the Holy Spirit and ourselves'. The apostles speak with the authority of the Holy Spirit.

Whenever disputes arise about faith or morals, people on their own will come up with all kinds of answers. How do we know whom to believe? To speak for Christ one must have a mandate from Christ. Jesus founded His Church on Peter and the Apostles, and gave them His mandate and authority. Jesus did not give His Church, in advance, the solutions to every particular problem they would encounter. But He did promise to send them the Holy Spirit, to help them remember what He had taught and to 'guide them into all truth'.

The same Holy Spirit sent upon the Apostles is still active in the Church now, helping to guide its leaders and members. The Church depends upon the guidance of the Holy Spirit to meet the difficulties and struggles of each generation, but the Spirit has sustained the Church through great difficulties, persecutions and sufferings, which in many parts of the world continue to the present day.

The Church faces much turbulence, like a ship on a stormy sea. But we have the promise of Christ that the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, is by our side. After saying this in today's Gospel, Jesus immediately talks about peace, 'Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. Not as the world gives it do I give it to you.' Amidst storms and tribulations there can still be peace because He does not abandon us.

The Holy Spirit also works in each one of us. He helps us to pray if we cannot find words; He moves our consciences to discern good and evil and to repent; He inspires good actions in us, and directs us to obey the will of God. Jesus says 'Whoever loves me will keep my word.' - the Holy Spirit helps us to keep loyal to Jesus.

The Church is not an end in itself – Christ founded it as a means to gather humanity in and get us to heaven. This is what the Holy Spirit guides the Church towards. It is the vision of St John in the second reading, of the heavenly Jerusalem, of all the saints gathered around the throne of God. There is no longer a temple building, because they dwell directly in the presence of God, illumined by Him. This is the Catholic Church in its full glory; perfect, immense, beautiful and filled with God's light. It is the dwelling of God with redeemed humanity; with those who have kept God's word. It is the fulfilment of Christ's promise, 'whoever loves me will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our home with him'.

Let us continue to seek the guidance and the help of the Holy Spirit to lead us home.
