THE BODY & BLOOD OF CHRIST (CORPUS CHRISTI)

Deserts are hot and harsh environments with no food and little vegetation. Humans are not able to live in such places without perishing from dehydration and starvation. If we suddenly found ourselves in the desert, we would soon become aware of what is essential for survival. The first reading today recounts the experience of the Israelites when God led them from slavery in Egypt through the desert to the Promised Land. They were hungry, thirsty and groaning. God had already given them the Ten Commandments, and now led them through this time of suffering to test them and see if they really trusted and believed in Him. He provided what was truly necessary – bread from heaven and water from the rock – to show them that they depend on Him for every good thing.

Our lives are in some ways like going through the desert. It can feel like a long and tiresome journey, where we are not happy or at peace. We can try to cling to things that give us comfort, just like the Israelites preferred to be in slavery in Egypt. But God had to lead them through the desert to freedom. There can be things in our lives that enslave us, addictions – big or small – and breaking free is difficult. It takes time, patience, and trust in God. The Lord purifies the chosen people in the desert, giving them what was essential to sustain them for each day, so they would not forget their dependence on Him.

As the Israelite people received the essentials for life, likewise the Lord gives us what is essential for eternal life in the Eucharist. In today's Gospel, Jesus says, 'He who eats my flesh and drinks my blood lives in me and I live in him. Whoever eats me will draw life from me.' To receive Holy Communion is to receive Jesus Himself. If we receive this food with the right disposition, our souls are filled with grace; we are nourished and strengthened on the road to eternal life. Holy Communion can transform us into Who it is we receive, that is Christ – we become what we receive.

The Eucharist is the greatest treasure and gift that Christ left for us. We should never underestimate its power, but it is essential to approach it with the right attitude. If we are conscious of having committed any serious sin, we should go to confession before receiving Holy Communion at Mass. We also keep a fast one hour before Communion. To put ourselves in the right frame of mind, we should spend some time quietly preparing ourselves before Mass. When we go to meet a friend, we think a lot about it beforehand; where we will meet, what time we will arrive, what we will say, what we will wear. We will make great efforts for something as trivial as going to a concert, and yet be lazy when it is time to meet Jesus at Mass. Yet here at Mass we not only meet, but may also intimately receive our Lord and Master, hidden under the appearance of bread and wine. We priests also have to remind ourselves that saying Mass is not a routine. If we approach Mass with the right frame of mind, the Lord will transform us.

On this feast of Corpus Christi, we are reminded of this great gift of the Eucharist. Through it we receive the grace that reminds us of our total dependence on the Lord. Jesus said, 'I am the living bread come down from heaven. He who eats this bread will live forever.' Does the prospect of eternal life with the Lord really attract us? The Eucharist is the foretaste of the heavenly banquet.
