TWENTY-SEVENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME (A)

Today's first reading and Gospel both use the image of a vineyard to describe the people of God. Vineyards are places where grapes are grown to make wine, and are more commonly found in warm climates, so the people of Isaiah's time, as well as Jesus' listeners would be very familiar with them. A vineyard requires great care and attention to cultivate a quality crop. This image is used by Isaiah to describe God's loving concern for the chosen people of Israel – God tried to cultivate the people through the teaching of the prophets and the covenants He made with them. But they resisted His voice and, as the reading says, were expected to yield grapes but produced sour fruit instead. Seeing the infidelity of the Israelite people, Isaiah foretells their destruction, and this eventually comes to pass with the destruction of Jerusalem and the Babylonian exile in 586BC.

In today's psalm, the psalmist pleads with God not to abandon them; they plead for another chance. They recognise that true happiness and salvation consist in being in a right relationship with God.

Jesus uses the vineyard image from Isaiah to expose the hypocrisy of the religious leaders of the day. The tenants in the parable represent the chief priests, who have the responsibility to take care of God's people, and the landowner represents God. The tenants do not produce fruit for the landowner but when they meet his servants and even his son, they beat and kill them. The servants represent the many prophets God sent to call the Israelites to repentance, which they rejected and killed. The son, of course, represents Christ, who as today's Gospel says, is seized, 'thrown out of the vineyard and killed'. Likewise, Our Lord was driven out of Jerusalem to be crucified outside the city on Calvary.

Jesus asks the chief priests what they think the landowner will do to the unfaithful tenants, and they answer, 'he will bring those wretches to a wretched end', not perceiving that in their rejection of Jesus, they are condemning themselves. Jesus then identifies Himself as the keystone. At the time, the chief priests were overseeing a major renovation of the Temple of Jerusalem, and despite these building works, they reject the one crucial Foundation Stone – Jesus Himself. Hence the Lord says that the Kingdom of God will be taken from them and given to a people who will produce its fruit.

This 'people' is the Church – the new Israel, established by Christ's passion death and resurrection – a new and definitive covenant in His Blood. The Church exists to gather all people, nations and cultures. We are all part of this. The parable of the vineyard applies also to us today. We are placed in the vineyard as stewards of it - each of us having our own responsibilities, and God requires good works from us, just as the landowner expected produce from the land he rented out. We must not be like the wicked tenants, looking out for our own selfish interests, in a life of lies and corruption. We are called to give God His place, and cooperate with Him.

The good fruits will come if, as St Paul advises us, we fill our minds with everything that is true, noble, good and pure, honourable and virtuous. Let us pray today not to become complacent, but in humility to labour and cultivate that part of the vineyard that the Lord has entrusted to us.
