SIXTEENTH SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME (B)

In last week's Gospel, Jesus sent out His apostles to engage in the hard work of preaching repentance and conversion throughout the surrounding towns and countryside. This week, they return to Him and share their experiences. They had been very successful: so many were drawn to Jesus that the apostles didn't have time to eat. To protect them from being burned out, Jesus calls them to come away with Him to a lonely place for rest.

At the start of summer we can identify with the need for rest, and give thought to how we spend our rest periods. It is easy to fill them up with noise and constant entertainment. It is good to spend some of our free time doing activities we enjoy, but we do need to be careful. I often hear people tell me after coming back from a holiday that they are more tired than before they went.

Jesus calls all of us to take our rest with Him, to be alone with Him and to be refreshed in His company. We leave aside our activities to be still, to listen and to speak to Him. The apostles are called away to a lonely place, where they can withdraw in silence. We too should look for and take advantage of opportunities for silent time and space with the Lord – it can be difficult in London but there are things we can do; we can get up a little earlier, when the house is quiet, or pop into a Church during the day or on our lunch break, or find a quiet spot in the park. The moments that we spend with the Lord in quiet prayer are never wasted; we will always come back to our work enriched.

We must make the conscious decision to create space in our busy schedules for the Lord. Constant activity and entertainment are obstacles to prayer, and if we are always active we will become physically and spiritually drained.

The psalm refers to the 'restful waters' to which the Lord leads us to 'revive [our] drooping spirits'. The first reading and Gospel refer to Jesus as the Shepherd for His flock. If we do not make the effort to listen to our Shepherd we will easily go astray.

When we work hard, all kinds of tensions build up in us, which can rob us of peace. Finding the quiet moments are crucial so that we can bring everything to Christ. With Him there is no pretence needed, we come as we are to unburden ourselves – and He restores us to peace. When we have Jesus, even if we have nothing else, we have everything. As we take our summer rest, we seek not only to relax our bodies, but also to refresh our souls, that we might delight in the company of Jesus, and come back again to our work with new energy.
