Sunday 13th March 2016

Fifth Sunday of Lent (C)

The readings of our Mass this Sunday all focus on the theme of moving forward and making a new start, of leaving the past behind and going forward in co-operation with Christ.

Today's Gospel is the account of the woman caught in adultery. Although the woman has committed sin, we should consider the corruption of the Scribes and Pharisees, who are not really concerned about the Law or the woman's wellbeing, but derive pleasure from condemning and humiliating her. In their corruption they also try to trip Jesus up. Jesus answers with that famous line, 'if there is one of you who has not sinned, let him be the first to throw a stone at her.' He bends down twice to write on the ground; this disarms them, and gives them time to think and something serious to think about: they are made to look at their own sins.

Eventually, only Jesus and the woman remain. In justice, He himself could have stoned her, as He is without sin. But he does not condemn her. In this situation, the woman in her extreme misery encounters the Face of Divine Mercy. Jesus says, 'go away, and do not sin anymore.' Jesus does not condone her sin, but He loves her and wants her free of it. So he tells her to go on her way but to leave the sin behind. In other words, He begins something new for her, and she leaves renewed.

This episode is repeated every time someone comes to the Sacrament of Reconciliation. They come to the Lord, bearing the burden of sin and guilt, and may well be miserable too. But Jesus is present in that sacrament, loving each penitent, and longing to free him or her from the sins that bind them, and make us new again. When we lose the grace of Baptism, it can be restored through the Sacrament of Reconciliation. It is crucial that as Catholics we make use of this Sacrament, because it is an encounter with the Lord Himself.

We will have our parish reconciliation service on Tuesday 22nd March at 8pm and many priests will be available. Confessions are also available in the Chapel on Saturday mornings at 10.30 and Saturday evening at 5pm, and at other times on request. It does not matter what we have done or how long it has been: grace, forgiveness and peace are available if we wish to change. As St Paul told the Philippians, he does not try for perfection by his own efforts – but he relies on Christ. St Paul knows that it is an on-going process; he says 'I have not yet won, but I am still running, trying to capture the prize for which Christ Jesus captured me'. We too are running the race of this present life, hoping to share in the power of Christ's resurrection.

As we draw near the end of Lent, we are called to turn away from our sins and once we have, to forget the past, striving ahead and upwards to fulfil the purpose for which God created us, and which He won for us through his death and resurrection.
